

Eric has spent more than 30 years in Safety, mostly in the water utilities, and has had many opportunities to work on large and small underground installations. He has worked with employees, contractors, shoring vendors, and engineers to develop protective systems and shoring plans. He has delivered Excavation/Competent Person training for contractors and utilities, the American Water Works Association, American Public Works Association and Oregon Association of Water Utilities, as well as regional conferences and short schools. Currently working as one of the Safety Professional on the Willamette Water Supply Program. He retired from the City of Hillsboro as their Safety Officer in 2021. Prior to that he was the Safety Manager with the Portland Water Bureau. He is a past president of the ASSP Columbia-Willamette Chapter and was honored in 2007 as the Chapter's Safety Professional of the Year.