

The hours listed are for each training course being held that week, total weekly hours are added laterally. Some courses will only last a single day, while others will span a couple/few days. Courses begin with in-class training (power points and videos of plant specific info), followed by in-field training that will recap and further elaborate on the classroom content. Most in-field training will happen at Portland's Columbia Blvd WTP, with some tours to local facilities planned as well.

This is for a newly developed Operator-In-Training program at the City of Portland set to officially kick off January 16th. These courses would not begin until February 3rd.